

BOOK OF CINNING

A comprehensive list of all entities in the Cinning universe

ALIENS

Aracelagen

[1/1]

The Aracelagen dwell within deep caves on Earth. They are from an unknown distant planet and make their way to Earth to breed with human males. They are similar to arachnids in that they have a thorax and abdomen, and have six spider-like legs. They also have spider-like fangs and eight eyes, but otherwise, their torso and head are mostly human-like. They often create human structures in their caves like gloryholes and telephone boxes to trick their prey into coming close. When their prey is near, they push their inner vagina-like orifice close to their outer anal orifice for the male to see through a hole in the cave wall. Then, they secrete a pheromone to draw the male close. When the male's head is close, they expand their anus and expand their insides, retracting the vagina-like orifice. They then wrap their anus around the human's head and tighten it around their neck to hold them within. They also use tentacles to pull the head inside of their inner abdominal cavity. Once the head is locked inside, they expose their penis from within the vaginal orifice, which also exposes any offspring that are contained in eggs. Next, they use the tentacles that also extend from the orifice to pull the human male's head close, which forces him to swallow the penis whole. Next, two more tentacles descend from above to be inserted into the nasal cavity of the human. This allows them to receive air so they can breathe. Oftentimes, as the human is forced to suck the penis, the Aracelagen's testicles will brush up against the side of the human's face, forcing him to feel the rest of the offspring eggs held within. Lastly, two more tentacles will extend from both sides of the inner orifice, and the Aracelagen will tighten the inner muscles to reduce the space within. The tentacles will be inserted into the ears of the human to alter its brain chemistry and DNA. Doing this will cause the human's skin and hair to change color and match those of the Aracelagen, signifying that the male has been assimilated. Frequently, the Aracelagen will bend down to suck the member of its prey, which is usually trapped within a web that the Aracelagen spins itself.

Araculum

[1/1]

The Araculum are an alien race that secretly abduct human males from Earth and store them on their cave-like space-ships. They have three orifices for trapping males, one at the end of each of their arms, as well as one at the front of their bottom thorax. They use their various tentacles that extend from their back and pectoral muscles to latch around their human prey and pull their head into their orifices, which then trap them there. While the head is trapped there, they use the genetic and energy-rich materials stored in their back wings to birth and form a new member of their species around the human males they have caught. Of course, this means that when they were birthed, they were formed around a human male, so they have one within them that constantly feeds them his cum. They keep them encased within their bodies, with their legs dangling in transparent cases beneath their lower thorax structure. The human within is stimulated with tentacles to his testicles and nipples, keeping him horny. The arms are trapped behind in the back wings, and the neck is held in place by a fleshy neck collar attached to the inner walls. The human's penis is kept hard and constantly is thrust forward into the thorax structure, above a large, prostate-like organ. The fleshy passage their penis goes into eventually exits through the lower head-trapping orifice. The head-trapping orifices at the ends of the arms can sometimes show an opening where the top of human males' heads can be seen trapped within. Any cum leaked from males that are having new Araculum formed around them will be deposited through a spout within the main body and spilled on the human within.

Adrachnerian

[1/1]

The Adrachnerian hale from the planet Adrachner. They are an all male race of humanoid warriors with enlarged, prehensile members. They adorn themselves with furs from werebeasts they have slain on their planet. They wear bindings on their waists and chests to embolden their muscular physiques. They have skin of various pink hues, and hair that is various hues of indigo. They are born to two fathers, and biological brothers breed with one another. However, to keep the gene pool diverse, they also breed with non-family members of their race. They are sexually compatible with human males, and will quickly enforce their dominant breeding behaviors on them if they are to come into contact with them. However, they rarely come into contact with denizens of Earth, but there have been a few documented reports of mishaps of this nature. Due to their lack of understanding of other species not native to their planet, they will mistake human males for members of their own species, and these humans will not be able to reason with them nor escape.

Celenian

[1/1]

The Celenian are an all-male alien species that exist in the deep vacuum of space. They create an atmosphere surrounding them so they can breathe, and the air is filtered by their inner light. They will sometimes visit Earth and steal human males to play with to their hearts content. They will force the males to penetrate them. They are very social beings and will often show off their trophy husbands to each other while having sex with them. It is possible that they may never return the human males back to Earth, trapping them in their celestial light forever.

Cetraletun

[1/1]

The Cetraletun is a single entity, consisting of a huge mass of tentacles, veins, and vision structures. It is an overbearing embodiment of homosexual lust and desire. It can sense when young human males have repressed sexual feelings. Over time, it causes them to feel their libido more strongly. At the rising point, it will teleport the human to its mass, ensnaring him in its tentacles for eternal breeding. It will often take biological brothers in pairs and force them to have sex within its hold, to further feed its unsatiated lust and hunger for sex. It will keep its victims eternally young for millennia to ensure it gets its fill.

Chrysnumen

[\[1/1\]](#)

The Chrysnumen will appear as regular human males at first. They will invite human males to their homes, but will actually lead the males to their spaceships, which look like little golden saucers. Following this, they brand the human with their powers to bind them to them for eternity. Next, they proceed to have sex with the human and reveal their true, golden body made of light. Taking the human to space, they trap them in their contained atmosphere for nonstop breeding.

Cunocutis

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

The Cunocutis are an all male alien species that assimilate instantly with human males on sight. They will bind to the shape of the human's body, and cover the entire body. For the head, they will retain their facial structure and hair. The human will be trapped within its fleshy walls and will only be able to see through its eyes as it moves its shiny exterior. They will use the human male's body for many purposes, such as having sex with other members of their race, or milking the male within through its own penis by using inner tentacles. It will oftentimes collect the sperm leaked and reabsorb it to bathe the human within.

Felingred

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

The Felingred are a space-faring cat-humanoid species. They have similar bodies to humans, but they also have traits of felines. They come to Earth frequently while undetected to steal male humans for breeding on their ships. Through breeding, they reconstruct the DNA and bodies of their human breeding partners to assimilate them and turn them into one of them. They can do this by either having anal intercourse, or by extending their breeding tentacles from their members. Using these tentacles, they can insert the seed necessary for DNA reconstruction through the human's urethra.

Fohrnangis

[1/1]

The Fohrnangii are savage and primal aliens with no form of civilization or higher intelligence, who dwell on the planet Drapoid. Their main purpose is to assimilate with human males who are teleported through haphazard portals to their planet for unknown reasons. They are fierce predators who, upon sight of a human, use their wings to fly quickly to them and pin them down. Immediately, their apprehending tentacles protrude from their neck and wrap around their prey's neck. They also have similar tentacles that protrude from their anus and wrap around the prey's wrists and ankles, helping the fohrnangis restrain them. Next, they place their large hands and feet on their victim, and the skin slowly assimilates to the human's skin to bind them to the fohrnangis. Through the connections in the skin, they secrete sex hormones to raise the male's libido. This also puts the male in a trance-like, sexual state to counteract any anxiety from the male being scared or heterosexual. Furthermore, the skin-to-skin assimilation also syncs the human to their own biological processes, so they keep a similar heartbeat and breathing pace to the forhnangis. Then, they shove their long, giant tongues inside their prey's mouth to assert their dominance. If the human still tries to resist or escape, the apprehending tentacles tighten around their neck to prevent them from doing so. Lastly, they thrust down their penile sucker muscles onto the member of the human, and milk the cum out of them. They store the human's sperm in their enlarged testicles to be used to birth new fohrnangi out their anus. The fohrnangis is extremely territorial and will hiss and growl to deter other members of their species from interfering with their eternal breeding.

Jakeln

[1/1]

Jakeln is the last of his kind on the planet Ralidine, where the grasslands and sky are pink as far as the eye can see. Jakeln was the prince of his kind, until his people died from an excess of sexual activity, which eventually wore out their life force. Jakeln's species is very similar to the human species, with some differences. All members are male, and they have both male and female reproductive parts. The main physiological traits remain masculine, but along with owning a penis, descended testes, and male reproductive organs, Jakeln and his kind also own a vaginal opening between their testicles, along with an internal uterus and filtering ovaries. Jakeln is very old and has lived for centuries since his people had perished. Very far and in between, human males will find themselves on his planet, which seals their sexual doom. Upon finding these human males, Jakeln will use his plasma manipulation powers to restrain males. He will then use his powers to stimulate the males' libidos, and once their members are hard, he will sit his vaginal opening on them. He will force them to penetrate him, and eventually cum deep into his uterus. He will absorb the cum, and use his ovaries to filter it with his kind's DNA. During this process, he will encase the human male's penis in a genetic mutation bubble. This will transform the male's sexual anatomy into that of a female, and the bubble will finally pop to signify that the process has completed. Jakeln will then use his penis to penetrate the human male's new vagina, and reach the cervix within. Reaching his climax, he will spurt the sperm that he sucked from the male and filtered into the male's uterus, impregnating him with their child. After the male gives birth, he will use the mutation bubble once more to return them to having male reproductive parts, and will milk them once more. This process will be repeated for many, many years as he asserts his playful dominance on his chosen husband.

Lingsugere

[1/1]

The Lingsugere are a predatory alien species consisting of young males who live for thousands of years. They live in space ships mainly located in the andromeda galaxy, right next to the milky way. Over hundreds of years, the lingsugere slowly and secretly interacted with Earth specimens, and located mankind. After these interactions, the species became reliant on breeding with man. Every few thousands of years, they privately kidnap 10 human males that have just turned 18 years old and force them into eternal breeding on their ships. First, they sedate them, and then they wake them on their ships to show them there's no chance of escape. Then, they use their tentacle sucker tongues to latch onto the tongues of human males. They secrete a numbing aphrodisiac into the tastebuds of the human and make them subdue to their sexual desires. Next, they use a feeding tube that extends as a tail-like appendage from their lower back. They insert the tube into the human male's anus, and using the tube, they slowly pump a feeding ooze that is absorbed by the male through the rectum, much like a suppository. This keeps the male eternally 18 and youthful for premium DNA to be used.

Phallcrinidom

[1/1]

The Phallcrinidom is a single alien of unknown origin. Its mass consists of internal, anal-like walls, masses that form into shapes that resemble human male buttocks, penile-like tentacles, and a buttocks-like transparent sucking tentacle. Human males that have the unfortunate chances of coming into contact with this alien should prepare for an eternity of sexual intercourse. Using their human-male buttocks resembling structures, they ensnare the male's limbs so they cannot break free. They then use their penis-like tentacles to spread the male's legs, and then have their transparent sucking tentacle descend on their member to milk their cum out for centuries. Through contact with their organs in this manner, they secrete a toxic aphrodisiac that keeps the human mind-numbingly horny.

Rildanid

[1/1]

The Rildanid are a species of aliens that are all male. They each consist of two brothers that act as one functioning creature. One of the brother's heads lives in the bottom half of the body, within the center breeding orifice. The creatures travel to Earth to secretly invade caverns and capture young, fertile male humans and draw out their saliva and cum to feed on and sustain themselves with. Once a human has been captured, when they aren't being used for breeding, they are holstered on their hind leg in a row. Furthermore, they have capsule-like head attachments connected by a tube that administers submission gas. When they find new human males to breed with or decide to breed with already captured ones, they move two males to their front body. The shorter male sits at the top, being propped up by two penises extending on both sides of the upper breeding orifice. Their penis is inserted inside the upper breeding orifice, and they are forced to make out with the top brother. As the top brother's tongue slithers deep within their mouth, they are administered an aphrodisiac that makes them fall deeply in love with the feelings and the brother himself. Meanwhile, the taller human male is seated upon the single, white member at the bottom part of the body. His penis is sucked into the bottom breeding orifice, and his head is sucked into the center breeding orifice. He is then forced to make out with the brother deep inside, similarly to how the other human male is forced to make out. The human males are never released.

Venalatus

[1/1]

The Venalatus is a single, giant alien composed of giant, penile tentacles with pointed tongues. In the center of the tentacles, the alien houses a pod for entrapping human males for cum-feeding. The human male is swallowed by sucking muscles that cling to his head and limbs, trapping him. His member is then ensnared by another sucking muscle, which milks his cock dry and feeds the alien. The alien's one purpose is to enforce its lust on the human, making him forever horny and spurting cum for it.

Vinfidelia

[1/1]

The Vinfidelia is a single alien of its kind. It exists within a pot-like pod full of pink ooze that keeps it and any human males within eternally young. It landed in its pod onto Earth after fleeing another planet. It has antlers sprouting from its hair, leaf-like ears, large slanted black eyes, and a green body. Its penis is multi-pronged with pink, sticky tassels protruding from the tip's rim. The smell of the ooze lures human males into its pod, which then traps them within the ooze. The Vinfidelia then approaches the male and wraps its tentacles around him. Then, it latches onto the prey's back and slowly grows its body out around the human. It creates tube-like pathways through its expanded body to pass nutrients through. It then transfers its penis to the front and forms it around the other male's penis. Then, it secretes pheromones that spike the human's libido, causing it to get to the brink of orgasming and spurting its cum. However, he is kept from cumming and instead is only able to leak precum as he is eternally edged. The pronged tassels keep the precum in a bubble formation so none is lost, and then the precum is transferred through a tube under the skin and to the alien for feeding. The human is edged for eternity as the alien feeds on its precum in a deep lustful love.

Vitrenis

[1/1]

The Vitrenis are an all-male alien race where all brothers of the race are twins and breed together. They frequent planet Earth to secretly capture human males for eternal breeding and assimilation. They are sentient weapons who morph into humanoid forms, retaining armor that matches their weapon form. Through breeding with human males, they can level up in their society from the energy they gain from the act. While their mouths are occupied licking or sucking, they can use secondary mouth attachments that float by their bodies to speak through them. They like to penetrate and be penetrated, and usually retain dominance over the human. They trap the human in breeding-slave armor.

Xamid

[1/1]

The Xamid are a galactic race of all males who hunt heterosexual males of other species. They most often hunt humans on planet Earth in secret and bring their captured onto their ships. They will often capture human males in pairs of two brothers, and label them as such on their ship by a tag. The species survival depends on breeding with males of other species, and human males are the best resource. On their ship, they use their technological biology to grow their biological suits around their human males, skin-tight. Next, they activate nerve clusters only found in straight male's brains, allowing them to mutate their DNA and make them genetically compatible. Next, they morph their hands into a technological machine of their choosing that is designed to milk and masturbate the human male's penis. Such machines include an enlarged suction spider cannon, or a tentacle fleshlight. They will often subject humans to common taboos such as incest to play with their prey and make them more horny.

AFTERLIFE BEINGS

Angel of Death

[1/1]

The Angel of Death, while appearing similar to Lucifer when he sneaks to the skies above, is his own entity and operates as a carrier of human males during their transition to the afterlife. He also brings the human to hell after the human completes his part of the afterlife trials that takes place in the heavens. During this journey, he rides the human as part of his own trial, measuring his balance of lust and love.

Apollo

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

Apollo is the god of music, light, and healing. He is the half-brother of Hermes and Dionysus, and the uncle of the erotes Eros, Himeros, and Pothos. When human males undergo their afterlife trials, he is the last trial of the heavens, and rides the male to judge the balance of his lust and love. Like all gods, he can manipulate the appearance of his age as he wishes. He often has to keep his half-brother Dionysus and his erote nephews in line when they break the heavens' rules, such as having sex with human males and bringing them to the heavens when they are still in the middle of their mortal lives.

Diamonoid Demons

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#)

Diamonoid Demons are specific demons that specialize in sexual relationships. Daimonoid Demons will often use their lust powers to lure human males into their anus. Once their male prey is inserted, they will often wrap their large tails around the human's waist or legs to lock them in place. Some of these demons have the power to shapeshift, and may turn into other various male individuals that their victim knows in their life to turn them on even more. They may also use this power to mess with their victim and fuck with their mind. Another technique that these kinds of demons can use happens while they are on top in the warrior position. They can make their testicles lean back behind the penis of the human male that is penetrating them and wrap around it to lock it in place. Elder Diamonoid Demons have one last power that they can use in the missionary position. They can suck the human male into their anus up past the balls, and lock their balls in place within their testicle-trapping cavity. This will push the tip of the penis just past their cervix and into their male uterus, so any cum will be pumped inside. In the testicle cavity, they have their veins merge into the testicles, assimilating the human to their anatomy for eternity. Through breeding with male humans, Daimonoid Demons fill them with an unsatiated desire for homosexual relationships, focusing more on intimacy than pure lust itself.

Dionysus

[\[1/1\]](#)

Dionysus is the god of wine and fertility. He is the half brother of both Apollo and Hermes. He likes to have sex and play with human males after getting them drunk, and will sometimes bring them to the heavens. He toys with them, and will often get his nephews, the erotes Eros, Himeros, and Pothos involved to increase the fun. Apollo will often have to keep him in line and make sure he isn't caught for breaking the heavens' rules.

False Angels

[\[1/1\]](#)

Sometimes, Incubi will disguise themselves as guardian angels, and will reveal themselves to wards of real guardian angels when the true angels aren't watching. They will then bring the wards into the sky for breeding, in which they will use their sucker penis to suck the cum from the human and lead them to sin.

Ghosts

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#) [\[4/4\]](#) [\[5/5\]](#) [\[6/6\]](#)

Some male ghosts remain in limbo in the afterlife to spread their influence onto the corporeal plain. Ghosts that have had strong sexual tendencies during their life tend to fixate on those sexual feelings in limbo and wish to spread them to mortals. They can be tied to locations or objects that were significant to them in life, but some have been known to wander. They can even be the ghosts of other supernatural beings, such as vampires, werewolves, and more. When they find a living human male that they like, even if they are heterosexual, they will still enforce their homosexual lust on them. For ghosts that are tied to a location or object, they will usually find them if a living male arrives there or interacts with the object, respectively. This will seal the living male's doom. The ghost will appear first as a living human in disguise and will haunt the mind of the human with his lust. Using his seduction, he will effortlessly cause the human to have sex with him. The ghost's sole desire is to enforce his libido on the living male so he can live in sexual decadence and experience his libido from his life once more. He will usually force the living into deep penetrative sex where the ghost will spread his legs and suck the cum out of the living human. He will use his ghostly hold to bind the human to him, and slowly turn him into a ghost too, pulling him into the afterlife limbo with him. In doing this, he can ensure that the two have sex as intimate partners, friends, boyfriends, husbands, or otherwise for eternity.

Guardian Angels

[\[1/1\]](#)

Guardian Angels are tasked with protecting their human wards on Earth, and must lead them on the path of good and virtue. By gently whispering to them, or using their holy powers of virtue to lightly suggest goodness to the humans, they send them on the path of good so they can one day reach heaven. However, when angels are younger and only just beginning these duties, they are susceptible to interference from Lucifer. He often secretly ascends to the skies above in the guise of an archangel.

When angels are unsupervised by the denizens of heaven, he is more easily able to charm these young angels into doing his bidding. By using his prowess in deceit, he tricks these angels into believing wrong from right, and forces them to influence their human wards into choosing the ways of sin. One common avenue that Lucifer prefers is tricking the angel into making their human pursue lust. To do this, he will even trick the angel into influencing those around their ward into doing the same, and taking their own lust out on the ward. Through this process, Lucifer is also able to ensnare the angel and cross them over to the dark side. He then personally claims that angel as his son for a time, and rides him to his own content within the realm he rules. Following this, the angel becomes a demon, and from the influence of lust will become an afterlife-born incubus.

Hermes

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

Hermes is the god of messengers, travelers, thieves, commerce, and cunning. He is Apollo and Dionysus' half-brother and is very charming. Like all gods, he can manipulate his appearance and appear to be any age that he desires at any given time. When human males go through their afterlife trials, he is tasked with riding the male to judge him and see if he gives in more to lust or love. Sometimes, his nephew Himeros will use his lust and seduction powers on him to make him have sex with human males that are still living their lives. Himeros is in love with his uncle's physique and loves how he has sex with humans and communicates with them, so he often uses him for his own toying and playing with humans. This is technically against the rules of the heavens, but he can't help himself.

Himeros

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#)

Himeros is the god of sexual desire and unrequited love. He is an erote and the twin brother of Eros, also known as Cupid. He is also the brother of Pothos and the nephew of Apollo, Hermes, and Dionysus. Himeros is highly sexual and deeply in love with his brother Eros and the lust of human males. He often likes to get his twin Eros to be mischievous with him and bring human males to the heavens above to play with them sexually. Eros usually gets involved for reasons of love, while Himeros balances out the encounters with sex. Himeros has a personal crush on his uncle Hermes, as he's infatuated with his physique, way of speaking, and overall personality. He often uses his powers on Hermes to make him have sex with human males since he loves watching him do so.

Incubi

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#) [\[4\]](#) [\[5/5\]](#) [\[6\]](#) [\[7\]](#) [\[8/8\]](#) [\[9\]](#) [\[10/10\]](#) [\[11/11\]](#) [\[12/12\]](#) [\[13/13\]](#) [\[14/14\]](#) [\[15/15\]](#)
[\[16\]](#) [\[17\]](#) [\[18/18\]](#) [\[19/19\]](#) [\[20/20\]](#) [\[21/21\]](#) [\[22/22\]](#) [\[23\]](#) [\[24/24\]](#) [\[25/25\]](#) [\[26/26\]](#) [\[27/27\]](#)
[\[28/28\]](#) [\[29/29\]](#) [\[30/30\]](#) [\[31/31\]](#) [\[32/32\]](#) [\[33/33\]](#) [\[34/34\]](#) [\[35/35\]](#) [\[36/36\]](#)

Incubi that hail from the afterlife are former guardian angels that have fallen to hell. Upon their descent to hell, their cheeks are marked with symbols that represent their inner being and personality, their wings turn demonic, and they grow hellish horns from their head and a tail of sin. These incubi often travel to Earth to infect and lure human males to the way of lustful sin. They differentiate from Daimonoid Demons in this way in that they focus on inflicting pure homosexual lust instead of focusing on the intimacy of homosexual relationships. In order to lure human males, they will often take the guise of a human themselves and entrap the male in a private space. Back during medieval times, they would also undergo the guise of satyrs. Once disguised, they will use their powers to subdue the male and force him into a wild, sex-crazed state of lust. That is when the sex will begin. Incubi will take the place of the penetrated, and force the males to fuck them deeply. One way of doing this is having the males fuck them in their anus. They will usually rely on their seduction powers to force the male to do this, but if he resists for heterosexual tendencies or otherwise, they will use their tale to pull him in deeper and lock him in place. Another method of penetration that they may use is through the urethra in their penis, which can expand and open to wrap around human male members. The bottom of their tip will often latch onto the testicles of the human male during this process to tug at them and stimulate them. With either form of penetration, once the male has felt the incubus' insides enough, even if he is heterosexual, he will eventually succumb to a homosexual libido and be deeply entranced. Upon orgasming and releasing his cum deep within either orifice, he may be turned into an incubus himself if the incubus so chooses. There is also a chance that he may be turned into a slave and kidnapped for eternity, being used as a personal dildo slave for the incubus. Incubi often force extreme kinks on human males, such as trapping brothers together in sex for incest, using power-dynamics such as posing as coaches, teachers, professors, doctors, or otherwise, and many more. It is also possible for incubi to be impregnated by the male human, which is an act that is forced upon the human. As the child grows within the incubus, the human will be forced to penetrate the child's mouth once most of it has formed. The cum will feed the child within and cause him to grow. When the child is birthed, he will be a fully grown incubus and will be ready to have sex with his human father. Depending on the type of incubus encountered, there are many different outcomes for what can happen to a human that meets their doom at the incubus' hand.

Incubic Humans

Incubic humans are incubi that were once human but have been infected with the incubic hold and turned into incubi themselves. They may still exist as humans on Earth and carry out their lives, which allows them to spread the incubic hold to other human males, including friends, family members, co-workers, and more. These incubi do not gain access to hell until they die, however, like afterlife Incubi, they do have access to the Incubus Dimension. This dimension is a sub-dimension of hell and is characterized by massive fleshy, anal walls. The air in this dimension imbues any human males taken there to be incredibly subdued by homosexual lust, even more so than on Earth.

Major Demon

[\[1/1\]](#)

Major Demons are the main denizens of hell, and are known for their red skin and indigo hair. During the afterlife trials of humans, they are tasked with riding the humans to measure their balance of lust and love, and follow incubi in this position. They are the precedent in the trial to Zagreus who finishes the trials.

Zagreus

[\[1/1\]](#)

Zagreus is the god of rebirth and decadence, and is the son of Persephone and Hades. He completes the afterlife trials, and is the final judge of all human males' balance of lust and love. He rides the humans and sees how they respond, consuming them and rebirthing them in his personal image.

ANIMALIA CHIMERA

Draconian

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

The Draconian are a cross between humans and dragons. They bear dragon horns on their heads and walk on dragon legs. Furthermore, they have dragon wings and a dragon tail. Some species have two prehensile penises which they use to masturbate and fuck their human male prey. Others have more human-like genitalia. They will also take the penetrated position, but will maintain dominance. Some also have the power to hypnotize. This power is usually found in nobles and royalty of the species. The Draconian Prince Rornock is one example of this. He, like others of his species, can also secrete lust milk from his nipples, which when drunk by human males will cause their libido to spike intensely.

Faun

[\[1/1\]](#)

Faun are a cross between humans and deer. They bear antlers on their heads and walk on deer legs. In the past, they were more commonly found but still rare, but after a time they became extremely rare due to having the need to stay hidden. They play panflutes to lure human males deeper into the forest, and then they force the human males to fuck them in a deep sexual lust for many years.

Harpies

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

Harpies are a cross between humans and birds. Their hair consists of feathers, and their arms and legs are covered in feathers as well. They have rear feathers, feathers that fan out on their arms, bird claws on their hands, and bird legs below their knees. These creatures are very playful and will kidnap humans in deep, unexplored forests by picking them off the ground and flying them to their nests. They will usually have sex in groups and force any human males captured to participate. They may either force the human male to penetrate their foreskin, which is enlarged and covers down over their entire penis, or they will have the human male penetrate their anus. Through these methods, they can change the anatomy of the human and turn them into a harpy with their feather pattern.

Naga

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#) [\[4/4\]](#)

The Naga are a cross between humans and snakes. There are various species with different abilities and powers, but all naga share some basic features. They all have a normal human torso, arms, and head, while the lower half of the body is replaced with a long, snake body. This snake skin usually extends to their backs and the tops of their shoulders. All naga have snake fangs as well, and they all have curved, pointed markings under their eyes. Some naga have hoods that extend to behind their heads. All naga have at least one prehensile penis, and most have two. They use these penises to breed with and masturbate their human male prey. Naga found on Earth mainly dwell in abandoned caves, but there are naga on other planets that dwell closer to the surface. Some naga use their penises to implant eggs through human male's urethras, where they are then stored in the testes. Eventually, after incubating and absorbing some of the human's genetic material, the eggs are ready to be birthed out the urethra once more. Eventually, they will grow and hatch as fully grown naga. Naga also have the power to turn human males into their kind. Some naga have a central breeding den which is its own separate organism, in which it is attached to. It will dwell in this organism, and emerge when it detects the presence of human males outside. The naga will then masturbate the male and then absorb him into its anatomy. Inside its body, it will use its inner tentacles to further milk the boy and feed itself for many years.

Satyrs

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#)

Satyrs are a cross between humans and goats. They bear goat horns on their heads and walk on goat legs. In the past, satyrs were more commonly found, but at a certain period of time, they hid themselves in deep, unexplored forests. Using their panflutes, they play songs that lure human males to their camps. It is here that they have deep sex with the humans and use them for sexual means for years on end.

Werewolves

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#) [\[4/4\]](#) [\[5/5\]](#)

Werewolves are a cross between humans and wolves. They often can be found in packs, but may also be found as lone wolves. They can maintain solely human forms, solely wolf forms, as well as a form that is a cross between a human and a wolf. In this third form, they look mostly human with some differences. They have wolf fangs, wolf ears, a wolf nose, wolf claws on their hands and feet, a wolf tail, and they may grow on various parts of their body. Werewolves have brightly colored eyes, and they can use them to hypnotize males and lure them into sexual encounters. Some werewolves also possess hypnotic singing voices, and they may sing to their prey while having sex with them in order to keep them even more lustful. Through having sex with human males, they can pass their lycanthropy onto them and turn them into werewolves. If the werewolf is part of a pack, they will incorporate their newly turned pup into their pack.

Sex Wolves

Sex wolves are a type of werewolf that primarily focuses on turning human males into lycanthropic werewolves through sexual encounters. They deem this their sole purpose in life and look for many attractive human males to turn. They are usually lone wolves and act on their own, and are often stronger than usual werewolves.

Werecats

[\[1/1\]](#)

Werecats are a cross between humans and cats. They can maintain solely human forms, solely cat forms, as well as a form that is a cross between a human and a cat. In this third form, they have cat ears, cat tails, and cat fangs. Some may also have claws, but this is not always the case. They will often pose as housecats in order to find human male owners to breed with. Through having sex with them, they make their masters reliant on them. They may even turn their owners into werecats themselves.

Wereskunks

[\[1/1\]](#)

Wereskunks are a cross between humans and skunks. They can maintain solely human forms, solely skunk forms, as well as a form that is a cross between a human and a skunk. In this third form, they have a skunk nose, skunk fur for hair, and a skunk tail. They prey on human males and use their skunk spray to subdue them into sex. They are playful and often get their brothers involved for sexual encounters with humans. Usually, they don't turn humans into their kind, but it has happened in very rare cases.

Werespider

[1/1]

Werespiders are a cross between humans and spiders. They can maintain solely human forms, solely spider forms, as well as a form that is a cross between a human and a spider. They search for and prey on human males that stumble into their abandoned caves so that they can breed with them and be impregnated. Through this method, they can make more werespiders. They may also turn their human prey into a werespider as well.

AQUATIC ANIMALIA

Ceteans

[1/1]

Ceteans are an all-male species of underwater creatures that are only found on planet Earth. They spend most of their time in the deepest parts of Earth's oceans, but will travel to the surface and to coasts to lure lone human males into the water. They then infect the human with a mutation virus which changes the human's DNA and causes their anatomy to change into that of the Ceteans. Following this, the ceteen that captured the human will mate with him. They will open their penile orifice at the base of their member to suck in the human's penis. Their own penis will wrap around and encase the human's, and will thrust up and down to make the human cum. It will then cum as well, and mix the two males' sperm together to impregnate each other and reproduce.

Daemonicus Mermen

[1/1]

There are regular merfolk who exist in the oceans of Earth, hidden from humans. However, there is a specific race of merfolk who exist as their own species, and this species only consists of males. This species was created by the union of a demon and a merman, which resulted in the reproduction of the new species. These daemonicus mermen go to secluded shores where human males gather and use their magical abilities, including their hypnotic voice and enchanting eyes to seduce them. These mermen have a specific kind of tail that allows them to have an exposed buttocks and anus. This allows them to force human males to penetrate and breed them. Through doing this, the human male grows gills and magically transforms into a daemonic merman himself. He is then brought back to the merman's aquatic city to live with the other members of the merman's species with him.

Durleans

[1/1]

Durleans are an all-male species of aquatic creatures that are found on planet Earth and a few other planets with humanoid aliens on them. Durleans always come in pairs and the two stay attached to them by a tube connecting their backs. On Earth, they are found in the deepest parts of the oceans, and sneak to the surface and coasts to kidnap human males for breeding. When they find a human, they wrap their legs around their face and force their vagina-like orifice on the mouth of the human. Their testicles function as an oxygen pump mask, and encase the nose of the human within them so they can breathe underwater. Next, the durlean feeds the human through the orifice attached to its mouth an organic vitamin that, when consumed and absorbed, will change the human's anatomy so that he can survive in high pressure water in the depths. Meanwhile, the other durlean attached via the back tube, will sit on and wrap his legs around the human's waist. Then, the two durleans will use their tentacle-like appendages at the ends of their arms and legs to propel themselves and the captured human to the depths of the ocean where they live. Upon returning to their habitat, they will locate their mother pod and bring the human inside it with them. Next, they will lay the human down with their legs on the leaf-like inner appendage of the pod. The durlean sitting on the face of the human will wrap their tail around the human's neck to keep them in place, and the other durlean will move their body further down to the member of the human and sit their own vaginal orifice on it. The human will be forced to have mindblowing sex with them, and penetrate against his will. Doing this, they will have a sexual food filter, where the face-sitting durlean will feed delicious food into the human's mouth full of nutrients that will keep the human eternally young. Then the human will filter it in his system through digestion and excrement out his penis in the form of cum. The durlean sitting on his penis will absorb the excrement and absorb the nutrients. It will take in nutrients from the surrounding water and add it to the excrement to create new food, which it then sends to its brother through the tube in their backs. Then the process is repeated, and this continues throughout their 3,000 year lifespan.

Infecetus

[1/1]

The Infecetus are an all-male shark-like humanoid species that dwells within the deepest reaches of Earth's oceans. Fully grown males have large, muscular bodies that hulk over the size of humans, while younger males are the same size as humans. Infecetus sons live within their fathers bodies. The outside of an infecetus is a transparent mucous membrane, and inside is an oxygenized fluid that allows their sons to swim within, along with any humans captured. The Infecetus adults will swim to the coasts of various continents to kidnap human males for breeding. They will attach them to their backs or to their fronts and wrap a breathing sack either around their heads or just around their mouths and noses. Within these sacks, gathered oxygen bubbles from the liquid within the body will be pumped in so the humans can breathe. The humans are attached by their arms and penis into squishy orifices that lock the arms and penis in place. The humans are then given a mutational substance through their urethra that changes their anatomy so they can survive under high atmospheric pressure at the deepest reaches of the sea. The infecetus will bring the humans down to the depths and force them to fuck and penetrated their orifices first. After the humans climax and release their cum into the infecetus, the cum will be absorbed so that the liquid inside can mutate and accommodate the presence of the human. The orifice sucking on the human's penis will then enlarge and the human will be sucked into the main body. The human will spend the rest of their life being forced to anally fuck the infecetus' sons within its body, as it constantly uses the cum to birth new sons for more humans to penetrate after they are captured.

Lataxeons

[1/1]

The Lataxeons are an all-male species of axolotl-like humanoids that exist in many different sea levels on Earth. They are excellent hidiers and can camouflage themselves to hide from the eyes of humanity, as well as protect themselves from predators. They will often go to the surface near isolated and abandoned coasts to find human males to have sex with in shallow pools of water. Human males are enchanted by their pheromones in which they release into the air. After having sex, the human male's anatomy changes from a virus that is administered, and they grow gills and are required to live within the water. The human also gains the ability to understand the lataxeon, which communicates with clicking noises. The lataxeon will bring the human back to its home habitat to play with him and breed with him for the rest of their lives.

Pisceas

[1/1]

The Pisceas are an all-male jellyfish-like humanoid species that dwell within secret underwater caves in Earth's oceans. They live as groups of brothers in their father pod deep within the waters. These creatures will go to Earth's coasts and find isolated human males to capture, since they feed and rely on human DNA to prosper. Once they find young adult males still in their prime, they will trick them into a false sense of security by befriending them. They will play with the human while enveloping them in pheromones that render the human defenseless and intoxicated. They then will pull them under the water and into their pink transit pods, within the oxygen hood. Within these pods are anatomy-changing oxygenized fluids that will mutate the humans' anatomy to allow them to breathe underwater as well as survive in deep water atmospheric pressures. These fluids are absorbed through the skin, and they also contain nutrients that will preserve the humans in their present age for hundreds of years. These pods will transport the pisceas and the human to their home, their father pod, deep within the Earth's ocean.

On this journey, they're not supposed to mate with the humans, but some will break this family rule and force the human to penetrate them while they caress the human's body with their tentacles. Upon arriving at the father pod, they return their transit pod to the upper father pod's mass and pull the human into the pod to ensnare them. Upon being entered into the pod's fluids, they will be incorporated into a brotherly orgy with a whole family of pisceii, where they will be milked of their cum to supply the father pod, which in turn feeds the pisceii and their human mates. In order to arouse the human, they will subject them to perverse kinks like incest, fighting for their attention and friendship, fight for dominance, and make other perverse claims that the humans will have no say in. The fluids around the humans will increase their libido and cause them to be incredibly sexually aroused by what the pisceii say. They also increase sperm count, blood flow, and cause the humans to be extremely submissive and suggestible. The humans are retained for the entire lifespan of the father pod, which uses their sperm to create new pisceii brethren for mating.

Squalian

[\[1/1\]](#)

The Squalian are an all-male species of a cross between humans and sharks. They are similar to mermen in that the bottom half of their body is that of a shark's. These creatures stay near secluded waters and lure humans to them by secreting their pheromones into the air, which attract young men that swim by the shore. They usually stay on rocks close to but not at shores, and the human males will be lured in and will swim out to them on the rocks. Once there, the human will be seduced into having sex with the squalian. The squalian will open its cloaca to pull in the human's penis, and will wrap its claspers inside around it. They will masturbate the human and cause them to cum inside their cloaca. When this process happens, the human is slipped a virus through his urethra which mutates his DNA. This causes him to grow gills and also age much much slower, allowing him to live thousands of years with the squalian.

FLORANS

Bulbopostucal

[\[1/1\]](#)

The Bulbopostucal are an all-male species of plant humanoids found on the planet Floralia. They are known for having leafy-green skin, red eyes, and an upper body and head that is entirely humanoid. The bottom half of the body consists of a bulbous pod structure with a vaginal orifice, which connects to the outer sac with which leaves spring from. The bulbopostucal will lure male humans and male alien humanoids to it with its breath mist, which is highly alluring and hypnotic. Once the male is near, vines will spring from within the sac and pull the prey inside it so he is standing within. Leaves will then push him forward from the buttocks, causing his member to penetrate the vaginal orifice. The bulbopostucal will continue to breathe his mist into the prey's face, preventing him from thinking straight. Within the orifice, the prey's member will be milked by a fleshy, bumpy passage. On the other side, the member will poke against the bulbopostucal's erect member inside. The alien floran will cause the prey to ejaculate into the chamber within so it can fill its sperm reserves, which it feeds on. Outside, two vines with leaf-like ends will press onto the prey's chest. Hair-thin needles will press into the chest and secrete a venom that will keep the prey eternally young and fertile, so the alien can have a food source for thousands of years.

Imbugram

[\[1/1\]](#)

The Imbugram are an all-male species of plant humanoids found on the planet Floralia. They are known for having grassy-green skin, yellow eyes, and a body that is almost entirely humanoid. They have a strip of skin that runs around their neck which is made of the same filaments that make the hairlike strands on their head. Where human ears would be, they instead have leaf-like structures. Their hands are encased in hard shells, and the structure looks similar to gloves worn by humans. When they find male humans or male alien humanoids, they capture them immediately. They have a tail-like structure that extends from the back of their waist, which they use to capture the prey. The end of the structure has two parts that extend from the main body of the structure, which wrap around the waist of the human and connect to form a solid, inescapable ring. Then, vines grow from this ring and wrap around the prey's body, and form neck-ring and hand shell structures similar to the ones the imbugram possesses. Next, the end of the tail structure opens to reveal an orifice with small tentacle-like tassels. The orifice envelops the member and testicles of the prey, and the tassels latch onto the skin of the prey so he can't escape. The prey is forced to penetrate and thrust back and forth within the tail structure, making him erect and hard. Following this, within the tail structure, a small tubular tentacle extends forward and enters the urethra of the prey, causing no harm or pain due to the small size of it. The tentacle travels through the urethral passage until it reaches the ejaculatory duct. At this point, the imbugram starts to penetrate the prey's anus, rubbing up against the prey's prostate with his member. Once this happens, the prostate is stimulated, and the inner tentacle is able to pass through the ejaculatory duct and into the bladder. After passing through this organ, it travels through the vas deferens and eventually reaches the testes. Within the testes, it plants a seed containing genetic information of its kind. It also secretes a serum that will change the anatomy and genetics of the prey so that he can be kept indefinitely young and alive forever. This seed will grow from the sperm of the prey and eventually become an egg, which will then be birthed out the prey's urethra. Eventually, this egg will hatch and a new imbugram will spring from it. The prey will then be used to impregnate their son, and this process will be repeated for thousands of years.

Obrevinligo

[1/1]

The Obrevinligo are an all-male species of plant humanoids found on the planet Floralia. They are known for having leafy green skin and green eyes, and for living in giant pot-like plants. Within these pot structures is a pink ooze that the father plant produces to emit pheromones into the air above. Humans and humanoid aliens are captured by the obrevinligo and suspended in the air above the pot by its vines. Next, vines with vagina-like orifices at the end of them attach to the hands, feets, and members of the captured prey. The tongues within wrap around the limbs of the prey to keep it from breaking free and escaping. Sometimes, the prey may muster enough energy to free one of their limbs, but usually will not be able to free the others. This will give the obrevinligo enough time to reattach that vine's orifice to the limb. The penises of the prey are milked through the orifice, and sperm is collected to feed the obrevinligo. Next, the obrevinligo will anally penetrate its prey with its own member to stimulate the prey's prostate, as well as fill them with its ooze. This ooze will be absorbed like a suppository within the rectum of the prey, and will be passed into the prey's system. This will keep the prey forever youthful and unaging, and will elevate their libido to keep them forever ready to be milked and feed the obrevinligo for thousands of years.

Rosaspindecs

[1/1]

The Rosaspindecs are an all-male species of plant humanoids found on the planet Floralia. They are known for having dark brown skin, a rose-like assortment on their scalp, and vine-like arms that can either be a darker brown or rose-red color. They sit on a chair-like petal structure within a larger petal structure that appears similar to a rose's petals. Vines extend on the bottom of this larger structure onto the ground to balance it. The Rosaspindec will constantly scan the contents of the air for the presence of male humans or male humanoid aliens. Upon detecting the presence of them, they will release alluring pheromones into the air to draw the prey in. Once the prey has climbed into their large petal structure, they will trap them by wrapping their prehensile member around their leg and wrapping thorny vines around their waist. The thorns on the vines will cause their venom to be injected into the prey. This venom will cause the prey to be enveloped in lust and love for the rosaspindec, and will turn their blood to glow within their veins with the color of the venom. The rosaspindec will sit the prey down close to him, and will take the prey's member in his hand to masturbate him. The prey's member will fill with a substance that is a mixture of the venom and the prey's sperm, but the prey will not be able to ejaculate. He will be kept on the brink of orgasm and ejaculation for thousands of years, and his precum will be fed upon by the rosaspindec's member, which will suck it out through the prey's urethra.

Suginretfol

[1/1]

The Suginretfol are an all-male species of plant humanoids found on the planet Floralia. They are known for having multicolored green skin and yellow eyes. These florans have bodies that are almost entirely humanoid, except for their leaf-structures at the ends of their legs that replace where human feet would be. These florans are extremely authoritative of their habitats and will become dominant when they find a human or humanoid alien invading their space. Upon this discovery, they will capture the prey within their green vines and hold them down. They will force the prey to penetrate them either through their anus-like or urethra-like orifices. They will then attach vines with sucker-orifices at the end onto the prey's testicles in order to lightly squeeze and stimulate them. They will also secrete an amino acid into their testes which will then be absorbed into the prey's system. This will cause the prey to age slower and will keep them young and fertile so the suginretfol can use them for cum-feeding for hundreds of years.

Urcevitis

[\[1/1\]](#)

The Urcevitis are an all-male species of plant humanoids found on the planet Floralia. They are known for having leafy green skin and yellowish eyes. Compared to other florans, most of their body is entirely humanoid, except for their pitcher-plant-like pod that replaces where the testicles would be on humans. This pod is where they pull human males and humanoid male aliens into for assimilation. They do this by using their outer brown vines to latch onto the human and pull them up inside the top of the pod where the opening is. Once inside, their prey will have their male genitalia milked within fleshy vine orifices. These vine structures are usually stored in sacs until they are ready to be expunged and used for breeding. The prey have their sperm milked out of them and it is fed to the urcevitis. Furthermore, the urcevitis virus is infected into the prey, which assimilates them to the species and causes them to become a suburcevitis. These suburcevitii do not grow the pod-like structure, but instead retain their testes and exist as sperm-providers within the main urcevitis for the 8,000-year lifespan of the plant alien.

Virgafilix

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#)

The Virgafilix are an all-male species of plant humanoids that hide in the deepest parts of forests on Earth. They are known for their grassy green skin, yellow-green eyes, and sprouts that connect them to the fern-like plants they grow from. Their primary goal is to ensnare humans that wander near them by using their vines to pull them in close. They will force the humans to become part of their family, and may refer to them as brothers. They have an anus like humans which serves the purpose of collecting human sperm. They will force their human prey to penetrate this anus and fill them with cum. During this process, they will grow their green skin around their humans to encase them and turn them into one of their kind. Doing this, they assimilate the human to their own biology and native father plant so that they can continue to breed and use them for other social tasks.

Mega Virgafilix

Mega Virgafilix are members of the species that have milked and assimilated so many humans that they have been able to grow a larger, pod-like structure. These virgafilix will often adorn dark-green shells that can appear like elbow-high gloves or knee-high boots, as well as an encasement around their member. They may also have grassy filaments on their chest or neck, similar to the filaments that resemble the hair on the top of their head. These virgafilix dwell within their father pod plant and usually have at least 4 or 5 humans kept as masturbation slaves within. These humans' limbs are trapped within the inside walls of the pod as tentacle vines masturbate them and suck out their cum for feeding. Furthermore, stimulating vines will attach to the humans' nipples to keep them aroused. They usually will take longer to assimilate these humans to their species. The virgafilix will only leave their pod if they sense a new human male approaching in the outside environment for them to capture and assimilate.

MYTHICAL CREATURES

Cursed Treasure

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#)

There are various cursed pieces of treasure that can be found on Earth. Some are deep within unexplored caves, some are just under the surface, and others have been stowed away in secret civilizations. These treasures are usually cursed by demons, and often are bestowed with the essence of a human male who once lived but is now purposed with carrying out the demon's magic spell.

The Treasured Chest of Petros

The Treasured Chest of Petros was once a normal chest owned by Prince Petros of the Byzantine empire. He would store his toys within it as a child, and then used it for his most treasured belongings when he was a young man. One day, a demon visited him and trapped him within the chest, creating a dimension of pretentious lust. The chest was discarded by the royal family after mourning for the son for years, and it was eventually buried along with a tower deep underground. On the full moon, an opening in the ground will appear for young men who stumble near it. A revealed staircase will lead down to the tower for them to discover the chest. Upon this discovery, the chest will open to reveal Petros, adorned in the jewelry he wore as a prince. All young men that he cursed over the years will appear as well, and they will pull the new young man into the chest to have sex with and inflict their lust on for eternity, adding him to the curse.

The Golden Snake of Ramsin

The Golden Snake of Ramsin was once part of a statue found within the center of a dark church. Ramsin was an assyrian warrior who was unfortunate enough to visit this church. This church worshipped a pagan god of snakes, and Ramsin was immediately weary. When he entered, the church was deserted, but a demon appeared. The demon cursed him to the statue, making him take the place of the god in the statue who held the snake. This church was buried underground but eventually found by archaeologists and brought to a museum. Museum goers often come and go, but some young men who approach this one statue disappear forever. The spirit of Ramsin will pull any lone males who gaze into the eyes of the snake into his cursed golden dimension of sex. First, he will appear naked to the male with his member out. The golden snake will be wrapped around him, hissing at the male who became present. Next, Ramsin will morph his member into a vagina, and the golden snake will wrap around the new male as well and pull his clothes off. It will then stroke his member to make it hard, and then pull him towards Ramsin, forcing him to penetrate him over and over. The male will be affected with the curse, and will stay trapped in this dimension with Ramsin forever, eternally fucking him mindlessly.

The Chalice of Ivar's Lust

The Chalice of Ivar's Lust was once an unbinded, cursed chalice that was placed by a demon in a cave. One day, a norse peasant boy named Ivar found it within the cave. Within it was a pink colored drink that gave off a hypnotic aroma. Unable to resist the temptations, he drank from the chalice. Upon this, he became bound to the chalice, forced to eternally swim within it in a satiating, neverending orgasm. Young men who stumble into this cave and find the chalice will be drawn in by him. He will make them blow him, and will secretly release some of the liquid into their mouths for them to swallow. This will bind them to the chalice, and he will pull them in to swim with him in its liquids. He will have sex with them for eternity as the liquid morphs and wraps around its new male.

Fairies

[1/1]

Fairies are spirits of good that hail from a sister dimension of the Heavens known as The Above. They are close to nature and often can be found in forests. They have wings, and wear gloves on their arms and boots on their legs. They often have markings on their bodies that signify the essence of their magic. They will live at pedestals deep within the woods, where they either will own this pedestal alone or share it with other fairies.

Sinful Fairies

Sinful Fairies are fairies that deviate from the virtues of good that fairies are meant to uphold. This usually happens with fairies who own pedestals on their lonesome. These fairies often form an animalistic feature, such as antlers atop of their head. Fairies such as these can give into lust, and if this happens, they will be prone to spreading their magical lust. If any human males come into contact with these fairies, whether in the dimension of The Above or in secluded forests on Earth, their fate will be sealed. The fairy will ensnare them in vines and bring them to their pedestal for conversion. As the human is trapped, the fairy will encase him in fairy gloves and boots and masturbate him. This will create the fairy seal on the human, turning him into a fairy and branding him with the marks of the fairy that is masturbating him. He will grow wings and a crotch adornment like the original fairy, which will encase his member in a skin-tight hold. The human will also grow the same animalistic characteristic as the fairy he is bound to. Upon the completion of the seal, the human will be infected by the fairy's eternal lust, and together they will live as brothers who spread their influence to other humans that are unfortunate enough to stumble on them.

Genies

[1/1]

Genies are magical beings that are trapped within magic lamps that are imbued with the spell of a demon. Oftentimes, they were human males that have been trapped by the demonic magic within the lamp. Their one goal is to trick any human males that find their lamp into making specific wishes. They wish to grant wishes that trap human males within their lamps with them. By doing this, they can fulfill the spell of the demon by having eternal sex with the human and spreading the spell to him.

Goblins

[1/1]

Goblins are mischievous savages from medieval times. They come from a demonic dimension known as The Abyss which is a brother to hell, and cross into the human realm when they so choose. In modern times, they have to be more secretive in order to kidnap males to enslave them for sexual escapades.

The Goblin King

The Goblin King is a massive, muscular force who lives within the goblin castle. He tasks his goblin subjects with kidnapping young human men for him to have sex with as his personal slaves. He will chain the human slave down and ride him against his will, forcing him to penetrate his muscular buttocks. Using his goblin pheromones, he can keep the human's libido overstimulated. Using the gems of his crown, he can channel hypnotic magic and keep the human in a trance-like state for endless breeding.

Minotaurs

[1/1]

Minotaurs hail from the dimension known as The Abyss and in medieval times would cross into the human realm. When humans have the unfortunate luck of finding themselves in The Abyss, they have the chance of running into a minotaur in one of the many mazes found in the dimension. The minotaur, upon finding a male human, will chain him down and ride his penis. The human will drown in his giant, muscular buttocks, continuously forced to breed him for the rest of his life.

Pixies

[1/1]

Pixies are like fairies in that they are spirits of good that hail from The Above. They also have a connection to nature, and can often be found in forests. They are usually smaller than fairies in stature and their magic is not as powerful. They have fairy wings and may wear human clothes. Unlike fairies, pixies have a mischievous side that causes them to toy with humans and create problems for them. In the end, they usually turn this into a force of good, however.

Dark Pixies

[1/1]

Dark Pixies are pixies that have given into dark sin. These pixies have their skin turn to greenish tones, and they are banished from The Above and sent to The Abyss. These pixies are prone to giving into mischief that is purely for chaotic reasons, as they have abandoned their good ways. They will often secretly travel to the Human realm to lure human males to The Abyss, which is the main way that humans end up there. Some dark pixies will take humans for themselves and transport them to Pixie Grove within The Abyss. Here, they will shrink the human to their size and have deep sex with the human. Through these means, they will turn them into a dark pixie just like them, enveloping them in their dark magic for all eternity.

Slimes

[1/1] [2/2]

Slimes hail from the dimension known as The Abyss and in medieval times would cross into the human realm. In modern times, they have to be secretive when going to the human realm, and often will stay in caves. They often will ensnare humans that they find and assimilate them into their mass for eternal sex and breeding. Slimes can be made of different substances, including human sperm. They can also camouflage themselves as humans to traverse the human world, as well as change the color of their slime body.

Vampires

[\[1/1\]](#) [\[2/2\]](#) [\[3/3\]](#) [\[4/4\]](#) [\[5/5\]](#) [\[6/6\]](#) [\[7/7\]](#) [\[8/8\]](#) [\[9/9\]](#) [\[10/10\]](#) [\[11/11\]](#) [\[12/12\]](#)

Vampires are humans that have been infected with an ancient demonic blood curse. These beings can feed on both human blood and sperm, which both satiate them. For this reason, vampires will often get into hoosexual relationships and mainly look for male humans to feed on. All vampires have three forms, their first being their demonic "true" form. In this form, they have bat wings, bat ears, and they may have a tail similar to a pig's. They also have eel-like tentacles that bear teeth, and they retain their vampiric fangs. They also have a gray-tone, rough demonic skin all over their body. Their second form is their "vampire" form, which includes their skin being paler than when they're in their regular human guise. They also bare out their fangs, and if they have a bite mark, it becomes more visible. They also have red eyes like in their demonic form, but some vampires are known to have yellow eyes instead. Their final form is their human guise, in which they appear like regular humans. Their fangs are not visible, and their eyes and skin are a normal color. Furthermore, their bite mark is faded and only barely visible. Vampires will use any means necessary to lure their victims into their sexual trap. This can be using their demonic vampiric magic through their eyes to put the human in a trance, or using regular cunning when dealing with already homosexual males. All vampires are eternally youthful and do not age, however, they can shapeshift to manipulate their age, and their appearance may change as a result of this. Some vampires have long tongues while in their vampire form, and may also keep this trend in their human form. When vampires have sex with their human prey, they will often take the role of the penetrated. They may bite their human during sex to taste his blood. Vampires are prone to incest and roleplay kinks and will often use these during their sexual human encounters. A vampire may keep his human prey as a slave, as they have the power to manipulate humans' ages and to keep them immortal like themselves. They may also show their demonic form to their prey, in which they can use their eel-like tentacles to masturbate the prey and feed on their cum, much like they would do through their anuses. This process will initiate the vampiric transformation in the human, which is finished with a deep kiss from the vampire. When this is completed, the human's skin will turn pale and he will become infected with the vampiric curse. In this way, vampires can spread vampirism to humanity while doing their feeding.

TECHNOLOGY

Astrikid Motorbikes

[1/1]

The Motorbikes of Astrikid scour the futuristic city in the decade of 3200. Their goal is to trap and assimilate all young men found within the city and force them to breed with them. Once they find a male that isn't assimilated, they will shoot out flails to capture the male and pull him onto the bike. Following this, visors will close around the bike and the male's legs will be locked into the leg armor sockets on each side of the bike. After this, the male will be forced to penetrate the Motorbike Android, whose legs are always up. The bike succeeds in doing this by pressing push pads against the male's buttocks, which prevents him from pulling out of the anal cavity. During this anal sex, the human will be stripped of his clothes and encased in a nanotech skin-tight suit. On the back of the suit is a glass container that is synchronized to the bike and which inserts into the spine of the male. The liquid inside the container is injected into the male's spine, and causes his brain chemistry to change over time. First, the male is made to want to become a submissive life-brother of the android. Next, if the male isn't already homosexual, his brain chemistry is altered to make him so. Next, he is programmed with a deep desire for incest, which is fulfilled by the android becoming his brother. After this, his affinity for roleplay during sex is increased. Lastly, the bike programs him to like the specific roleplay that the android prefers, in accordance with the bike's customizations. The injected liquid also assimilates to the blood of the male, which can be seen by its glow within the veins and through the skin. The liquid will keep the human eternally alive and youthful, so that he remains fertile. Through these methods, the bike is able to assimilate the human and keep him forever erect and cumming over and over within the android for eternity.

ARGENT

[1/1] [2/2]

Argent is a secret organization of human males. Their main purpose is to kidnap young men from their homes and lives, and test them to see if they should join their organization or not. If they deem the males to be unfit to join, they will discard them by feeding them to various different aliens on other planets. They also secretly keep some of these aliens at their headquarters in containment cells.

Argent's List of Aliens

The following is a list of aliens that Argent gives male humans to. Not all are contained at Argent.

- « Adrachnerian
- « Cunocutis
- « Phallcrinidom
- « Venalatus
- « Durleans
- « Bulbopostucal
- « Imbugram
- « Obrevinligo
- « Rosespindecs
- « Suginretfol
- « Urcevetis

Argent will swoop down on ships to these captured planets, carrying captured humans. They will release these humans close to detected alien species that breed with human males and alien male humanoids, and let them succumb to the alien's sexual desires.